

CRBH Community Radio & media Cafes on Budget Transparency, 2022.

"Delivering a more citizen-focused governmental service requires county and national governments to engage the public in the decisions regarding the allocation of resources, taxation and on what services are availed and delivered from the taxes collected."

"It intrigues me when some counties which have public budgets, do not publish and publicize a single budget document. CBTS 2022 reveals 4 counties, Migori, Wajir, Kajiado and Isiolo counties, did not publish any document "

"Kwale County is a classic example of moving from grass to grace, having improved from 23 % in 2021 to 74% in 2022 in transparency score. It's evident that peer learning and adopting the best practices can catapult budget transparency in counties."

"Tracking service delivery and holding the government to account, we need quarterly implementation reports, which happen to be the least published documents by county governments."

"When the government avail accurate and comprehensive information in a timely manner, the citizens have an opportunity to engage with the government, on influencing priorities from a credible and informed point of View!"
